Located within the iconic Royal Festival Hall, Skylon, which takes its name from the famous landmark built in celebration of the 1951 Festival of Britain, offers a spectacular panorama of London's skyline with floor to ceiling glass windows overlooking the River Thames.

Presenting the ultimate vantage point and capturing the buzz of the capital, Skylon is a destination venue, occupying a triple-height room that is divided into three distinct areas - restaurant, bar and grill - with bespoke, bronze-coloured chandeliers that punctuate the space.
